Hedgehogs

Have you heard of the mammal that has been called "the pincushion with legs?" You might be thinking of a porcupine, but you would be wrong. It is actually the hedgehog. Yes, the hedgehog. Most mammals have hair or fur, but these little guys have a thick layer of spikes on their backs called quills. They have about 3,000-5,000 quills on their backs! They can live in the wild, in a zoo or can be a pet.

Hedgehogs can be white, light brown or black. Their bellies are soft. They have small, powerful legs and big feet with [illegible] toes. Hedgehogs [illegible] claws, which make them amazing diggers. They have a strong sniffer with a wet nose that makes it have an excellent sense of smell. Their ears are larger than their bodies, so they have a great sense of hearing.

A hedgehog lives on the ground and never in trees. It likes to live alone. It eats lots of different insects and sometimes even some veggies. Hedgehogs are active at night. They dig, chew and forage all through the night. That means they are nocturnal. Hedgehogs have 44 teeth and they can bite. Some things Hedgehogs do not do are carry fruit or veggies on their backs or curl into a ball and roll around. These funny creatures are very interesting.
